CHAIRMAN'S WELCOME

Welcome to the 2021 season!

If ever we have started football in a season where life as we knew it seems a distant memory, it is this year!

There is no doubt missing sport and in our case football, has highlighted the many things society has taken for granted.

The sense of community, being part of community and all the benefits, it makes to all of us personally have indeed affected us all.

We must acknowledge the people and families who have suffered greatly, both nationally and locally as a result of the pandemic we are currently battling. I would appeal to all and everyone to play your part to continue doing what is necessary to protect the more vulnerable in our community, after all it is someone's mother, father, son, daughter we are helping.

I also think it is appropriate to acknowledge all the front-line workers of all Industries, Trades and Professions in putting us ahead of themselves at this time at considerable risk to them and their families for the greater cause.

We are delighted to be allowed resume activity at this time and provide some normality and indeed hope in the weeks and months ahead. We must thank all our volunteers, sponsors, supporters etc. for all support and work to enable us to get through 2020 and able to compete again this coming season.

Well done to Gary Cronin and his team in continually improving the squad this season and hope they can achieve their goals in what is the most competitive league for many years.

I don't know if my heart can take the same levels of excitement of 2020. The club has signed some very talented players and we can't wait to see some of these young stars perform and hopefully challenge for a promotion spot come October.

We have been busy making improvements in Bray with new floodlights, training facilities and have applied for funding for a new all-weather also with many new people coming on board with media, commercial, community skills to assist in the off field activities. We are continually looking for people to get involved...so come on step up and reach out.....your club needs you!

We have also expanded our Academy teams to six teams including Girls u17 & u19 this season and have over 140 players and coach's chomping at the bit to hopefully get going in the coming weeks to continue the tremendous success we have had at underage level in developing player for the future. This has been really a tough time for these young footballers, and we must support all aspects of their development at this time.

Today history will be made, as we welcome Treaty United for their first game in the National league and wish them well on their journey, as it is so important to have Limerick as a county involved at this level. We have no doubt this project will continue the great tradition Limerick has brought to football in Ireland over the years.

Keep the faith!

Gary Cronin has transformed the playing squad over the winter months with nine new arrivals. Experienced duo of Mark Byrne (Shelbourne) and Conor Clifford (Derry City) will be great additions to a youthful squad while other new recruits include Richie O'Farrell (Drogheda United), Steven Kinsella (Cabinteely), Sean Callan (Shamrock Rovers), Kian Clarke (Shamrock Rovers), Brandon Kavanagh (Shamrock Rovers – on loan), Darren Craven (Malahide United) and Andrew Quinn (Dundalk – on loan). Darren captained Malahide United to the Leinster Senior League title last year.

The return of senior League of Ireland football to Limerick is welcome news for all supporters of the National league. Newcomers, Treaty United are managed by former Limerick FC manager Tommy Barrett. Treaty United's home jersey this season is red and white, and the club crest incorporates the bridges over the River Shannon.

Barrett has added some experience to his side at short notice. Tadgh Ryan and Shane Cusack will battle it out for the goalkeeper's jersey. Ryan has previous experience with Huddersfield Town, Waterford United, Cork City and Galway FC. Jack Lynch is the son of former Limerick City and Waterford United manager Tommy. Jack has previously played with Waterford United where he won a first division title in 2017. He spent last season with Galway United.

Marc Ludden has plenty of League experience over the last decade with Mervue United and Galway United. Joel Coustrain had spells in both England and Scotland before signing for Shamrock Rovers. He has since lined out with Cork City and Athlone Town. Conor Melody is also a former Galway United

Some newcomers to the League of Ireland to watch out for this season with Treaty United will be Matt Keane (Killarney Celtic) and Callum McNamara (Newmarket). Also, Joe Collins who performed well in recent years for the Galway District League in the Oscar Traynor cup.

Treaty were unbeaten in their three pre-season fixtures. Their first game was a 1-1 draw away to Waterford FC at the Regional Sports Centre. Joel Coustrain had the honour of scoring the first goal for Treaty's senior men's team before Waterford equalised in the second half to earn a draw. A 0-0 away draw with Athlone Town followed before they defeated the same opposition 2-1 at the Markets Field last weekend. Sean McSweeney opened the scoring for the home side before Clyde O'Connell doubled their advantage. Athlone pulled a goal back from the penalty spot through Kurtis Byrne just before the break.

QUIGLEY'S WORLD OF FOOTBALL

"The Man In The Middle"

By Brian Quigley

What was the stand-out thing about the 2020 English FA Cup final, aside from the obvious fact that there were no fans because of the pandemic?

It was the man in the middle, the referee. Anthony Taylor. Why? Because he had also refereed the 2017 FA Cup final. So what, I hear you ask. Well, you're only allowed referee one, and that's been the case since 1902.

The FA considers giving an FA Cup final to a referee as the highest honour they can bestow on an official, and the referees concur. If you've been an assistant referee, fourth official or reserve official at a previous final then that doesn't count, but if you've refereed one then you can't get another. All the greats – George Courtney, Keith Hackett, Neil Midgely, Joe Worrall, David Elleray, Howard Webb, Michael Oliver – only ever got one FA Cup final.

It wasn't always this way. Prior to 1902 you got as many as the FA wanted to give you. Alfred Stair refereed the first three FA Cup finals, from 1871-72 to 1873-74. Charles J. Hughes also got three, as did John Lewis. Francis Marindin refereed a whopping nine, including eight-in-a-row between 1882-83 and 1889-90.

So, how did Anthony Taylor add 2020 to 2017 to join Charles Clegg [1882 and 1892] and Arthur Kingcourt [1900 and 1901] on two FA Cup finals and add his name to the small but elite list of officials who have officiated more than once in the world's most celebrated domestic Cup final?

The answer is COVID related. The FA didn't want to deprive a referee getting the game for the first time of the full FA Cup final experience of the packed stadium. So, they made an exception for 2020 and Taylor was in to make history, or rather add his name to a long-dormant piece of history.

The appointment of the FA Cup final referee has occasionally caused controversy. Take Mike Dean's appointment for the 2006 final between Liverpool and West Ham United. Dean had to be replaced by Alan Wiley after newspapers alleged that Dean would be biased in favour of Rafa Benitez's side because he hailed from The Wirral. Thankfully, Dean got to oversee the 2008 decider between Portsmouth and Cardiff City.

My least favourite FA Cup final referee would have to be Peter Willis, who sent off Kevin Moran in the 1985 game between Everton and Manchester United. This was the first time that a player had been sent off in the FA Cup final. Thankfully, Moran's Manchester United side won the Cup through a superb Norman Whiteside goal.

Here's one for the pub quiz stock. Name the only father and son to have both refereed FA Cup finals. The aforementioned Arthur Kingcourt was the father, and Harry Kingcourt – who refereed the 1931 final between West Bromwich Albion and Birmingham City – was the son. I'm sure the fact that dad Arthur was by 1931 the FA Treasurer had nothing to do with Harry getting the gig!

Home Thoughts from Social Distance

Mícheál Ó hUanacháin 'meets' Bray manager Gary Cronin to mull over what's changed and what's the same for the new season

When three top-flight weekend matches get a total of five column inches on an 'other sports' page of Monday's Irish Times, then you know the League of Ireland season has opened to the usual media fanfare.

It could be worse, of course. It would be unsurprising if the so-called newspaper of record ignored the results of the First Division matches this weekend, let alone give the details or, heaven forfend, a match report.

Normally, of course, that would be just a routine grouse for LOI fans - but with attendances still banned, and even with a narrowcast TV coverage this season, there's a real danger that the limited following the domestic game still has may be eroded even further.

But crowds or no crowds, we are back in action, and Bray Wanderers manager Gary Cronin is delighted that the shadow-boxing is over, and the League is under way.

"I think the First Division is the strongest it's been in years, potentially the most competitive," he tells me in a distanced chat (he at home, me in west Kerry!), despite agreeing that some of the clubs are still very much dark horses. "Treaty, our first visitors this season, had a rough start, not knowing until the very last minute whether they were in or out. They might be unpredictable, but on paper, it looks like a capable squad, and you can't rule anything out."

Something similar can be said about Cork City, whose off-pitch uncertainties certainly didn't help their preparation:

"There's a good bunch of lads there, very committed, and I'm sure they will be competitive. Shelbourne must have been very disappointed last year, and they'll feel they have something to prove."

As Cronin continues, the potential for a very tight competition becomes even clearer: "Galway finished very strongly last season, they seem to have had a 'new manager' bounce, which proved to be very negative for us. UCD are likely to be there or thereabouts, and Cobh are always difficult to beat."

What it comes down to is that a promotion system which offers the prospect of playoffs at least to all the clubs in the top half of a ten-team league means that all ten can hope for a result - "it doesn't take a big run of form to bring you to fifth, and that's a playoff place," he says.

We don't do a full rundown of the list, but it's clear that the Bray boss is not choosing any small bunch of opponents as 'threats' to the Wicklow side. They're all threats, and every match is a must-win - or to put it another way, the most important game of the season is always going to be the next one.

And disappointing as it may be to reopen behind closed doors, Gary has mixed feelings about the loss of the legendary 'twelfth man'. "You can certainly see its impact on the international games, the loss of the travelling support for Ireland," he muses, while speculating that the effect on domestic games hasn't been too dramatic.

"In football terms, it's not a huge loss," he says, "nor in any real sense a gain, except that managers aren't constantly getting it in the ear!"

That said, he recognises that the atmosphere is quite different without the fans: "Games need crowds," he says, citing a flat ambience at the big games at the end of last season. He agrees, though, that to a certain extent that could militate against the home team, not having their regular crowds, the so-called home advantage is reduced.

"It was noticeable when we did have permission for up to 200 spectators last year the atmosphere was quite different," he remembers, "but then the team were playing well, we had a good run, and that always helps."

And revisiting his old stomping ground in Longford during the season was “very flat, you could feel the difference.”

We avoid the tendentious subject of the strengths (or for that matter weaknesses) of individual squad members, apart from noting the selection of Brian Maher (pictured left in Ireland under 21 training this week) for the Ireland Under-21 game last Friday in Wales. “It’s a great experience for him,” Cronin says of the former Pats keeper, who had previously appeared in green at Under-17 and Under-19.

At the risk of inviting a cliché like ‘we are where we are’, I sign off hoping to meet in the flesh before the end of the season. By then, Gary’s time as Bray boss will have exceeded that of his five immediate predecessor managers put together.

He laughs. “I never thought of that,” he says. But his thoughts immediately turn to other managers of the ‘what if?’ kind. Hindsight is a great thing: “Shamrock Rovers kept Bradley on when there were fans shouting for change after a poor season – and look where they are now.”

He goes on: “It often depends on a Board or a management which has faith in its own choice of team manager and giving him time to build up to the sort of results they hope for. Longevity is sometimes needed in managers, they can’t always turn a team into winners in the course of a single season.”

There is little likelihood of Gary being under pressure this year. And he won’t be ‘getting it in the ear’ from disgruntled fans either – at least for the foreseeable future. But this is the season we’ve got. With or without media fanfare, with or without spectators (there’ll always be fans), it’s time to get on with it. And we will. We’re that sort of people. We’re that kind of community. We’re that type of club.

Vincent Kirwan's Bray Wanderers Dream Team

Ahead of the kick-off to the 2021 season, Lifelong Bray Wanderers fan and club match commentator Vincent Kirwan selects his Bray Wanderers dream team.

Josh Moran

Hugh Douglas Wesley Charles Mick Doohan Anthony 'Bo' McKeever

Stephen Fox Eddie Gormley Colm Tresson Dermot Judge

Jason Byrne Kieran 'Tarzan' O'Brien

This is my dream team - not necessarily the best Bray Wanderers 11 ever but the team I would love to see lining out.

I would like to see a 4-4-2 formation as that's the style I like best. Some younger fans might not have heard of some of the players but I can guarantee them they were all playing for the club and were loyal to the core.

All of them each played over 100 times for the Seagulls, some over 200 times, some over 300 times and one over 400 times - talk about loyalty.

Nine of these players have won the club's Player of the Season award. Tresson won it an incredible five times while Fox and Judge failed to collect the prize during their careers.

The one who stands out for the role of captain is Mick Doohan for his presence on the pitch and for his leadership qualities. Mick led us to the 1999 FAI Cup final win.

For me, there can be nobody else to manage these guys but Pat Devlin who brought so much glory to our club as manager. Nobody can doubt his management qualities and he is still at it.

Why have I chosen these 11:

Josh Moran: Well mainly because he is a friend of mine and he'd be upset if I left him out. Seriously, Josh was a top class 'keeper and of course he was the netminder for the 1990 FAI Cup final win and was very reliable and bossed the defence in front of him.

Hughie Douglas: Always liked watching Hughie who never failed to give 110% and in latter years was the go-to man if we were losing late on and needed a goal. More times than not; he obliged.

Wes Charles: When Wes signed from Sligo, he lit up the whole club and created a special atmosphere around the place. Was always very solid at the back and never let the side down. However, it did take him a long time to get the first of his six goals for the club in his 147 appearances.

Anthony 'Bo' McKeever: I think he was always the first name on Pat Devlin's team-sheet each week. Why you might ask? Well, if you were in trouble in the trenches, 'Bo' is the type of guy you would call on for help but actually you wouldn't have to call him; he would see the danger probably before you and he would be there before you realised it.

Mick Doohan: You couldn't have a better leader and a more solid defender and someone who was so handy to have for set-pieces up around the opposition penalty area from where he scored most of his 34 goals in 343 appearances.

Stephen Fox: To me. He was an unsung hero who was dedicated to his job on the pitch and never looked for the glory. He just got on with his job and never looked to blame somebody else when things went wrong. He scored 42 goals from midfield in 297 appearances for the club.

Eddie Gormley: He was the anchor in Bray's midfield for so long - he played 151 times for the club and was always a pleasure to watch. He was probably the most skilful player to wear the Green and White stripes. Eddie of course went on to manage the club for a period.

Colm Tresson: Surely the best reader of a game, he was always available to help out his defence as well as creating chances for his forwards. When Colm was fit, he was always going to be on the team sheet and it's easy to see how he racked up 441 appearances for the Seagulls.

Dermot Judge: He is not in my team just because he was captain of our 1990 FAI Cup winning side but because of the skill he had and the engine inside him that made it possible for him to be going as strong at the end of 90 minutes as he was in the first minute. He also had great leadership qualities that stood him apart from others on the field.

Jason Byrne: What can I say about Jason that hasn't been said already? Every team needs a goalscorer and with Jason in your side, you were assured of goals and his record of 95 goals sees him as the club's leading goalscorer.

Kieran 'Tarzan' O' Brien: When he joined the club and quickly worked his way into the first team, he became a local hero with his scoring prowess. After 374 appearances he had a tally of 90 goals; just five less than his strike partner in my team and with these two up front goals would freely flow I would suspect.
