I would like to welcome Pat Devlin and his Cabinteely FC team and club officials to the Carlisle Grounds for this evening's encounter.

Pat Devlin needs no introduction to Bray Wanderers fans having managed the Seagulls for over 600 games. Pat led Bray Wanderers to two FAI cups wins, 3 First Division titles and a Shield title. Pat's backroom team at Cabinteely also includes ex-Wanderers' manager Eddie Gormley and coach Eddie Wallace.

Our Academy teams have returned to training in preparation for the season ahead which hopefully will start at the end of June or early July.

Former Wanderers player Jody Lynch will be joining Vincent Kirwan as co-commentator on the live stream of tonight's match. Jody was an FAI cup winner with Wanderers in 1999, First Division winner in 1999/2000 and the Supporters Club Player of the year in 1997/98.

Paul Walsh has joined the club in the role of Head of Education, Community and Partnerships. We wish Paul well in his new role.

The Club are hopeful of running Summer Camps later in the summer in July & August as well as a goalkeeper's summer camp.

For the month of May, Bubbles Car Wash Bray on the Southern Cross is donating 50% of its profits to Bray Wanderers. Just mention Bray Wanderers when booking online or at the point of purchase. Online booking is available at bubblescarwashbray.ie

We extend our condolences to the Family & Friends of Leonard (Len) Bryan who passed away last Sunday. Len was a very keen soccer and League of Ireland supporter and a regular attendee in the Carlisle Grounds. RIP.

Enjoy the game.

MATCH PREVIEW – Michael Duffy

Tonight's meeting of Bray Wanderers and Cabinteely FC is only the seventh meeting of the sides in senior competitions. The sides have met five times in the league with two wins apiece and one draw. Cabinteely have failed to keep a clean sheet in the six previous games in all competitions.

Cabinteely won their two opening league games of this season defeating Wexford FC 2-1 away on the opening night of the season. Kevin Knight and Dean Casey scoring their goals. They followed that up with a 1-0 home win over Cork City with an own goal from Cork's George Heaven.

Their next home game against Galway United was called off late due to a Covid case in the Cabinteely squad. Two league defeats followed in succession, losing away to UCD (1-4) and at home to Shelbourne (1-3).

Cabinteely have won their last two league games. They defeated the then league leaders Athlone Town 2-1 a fortnight ago with goals from Niall Barnes and Ben Hanrahan. Mitchel Byrne scored his first goal for Cabinteely two minutes from time to secure a 1-0 home win over Cobh Ramblers last week.

The current Cabinteely squad has six former Bray Wanderers players in their squad in Adam Hayden, Dan Blackbyrne, Kevin Knight, Luke Clucas, Kieran "Marty" Waters and Kieran Butler.

Goalkeeper, Adam Hayden made six appearances for Wanderers in 2019 & 2020. Daniel featured twice in 2015 & 2016, Kevin Knight made 57 appearances (2011-2013) and scored once in his spell at the Carlisle Grounds.

Kieran Waters made 81 appearances (2011-2013) and scored 19 goals for Wanderers. He was the Supporters Club Player of the Year in 2012 & 2013 and the "A" team Player of the Year in 2011. He won 5 Player of the Month awards including three successive months April, May & June 2012.

Luke Clucas & Kieran Butler played for Wanderers under 17s and under 19s without making a first team appearance. Kieran was the under 17 Player of the Year in 2016.

Cabinteely's backroom staff include assistant manager Eddie Gormley who made 151 appearances (21 goals) in two spells as a player with Bray Wanderers between 1987/88 & 2000-2005. Eddie was Bray's player of the year in 2001/02. He also managed Bray Wanderers from September 2006 to August 2010.

Cabinteely's Academy manager Eddie Wallace has previously coached at Bray Wanderers under Pat Devlin and was assistant manager to John Holmes from 1991 to March 1995

Bray Wanderers season so far has been disrupted by injuries to some of the first team squad. Darren Craven and Stephen Kinsella are expected back tonight having recovered from injuries which ruled them out of the last few games. Ryan Graydon also returns having served a three-match ban for his late sending off against Athlone Town last month.

Wanderers recorded their first league win of the season last week with a 2-1 win over Galway United in Eamonn Deacy Park.

Gary Shaw (partly hidden) heads home the winner against Galway United last week.

Gary Cronin Interview

Media Officer, James Fenton caught up with Gary Cronin after last week's game in Galway

It was The Righteous Brothers who sang about losing that loving feeling but for Gary Cronin and his troops it was the winning feeling that had been missing in recent weeks.

Having started the season with five draws and a defeat, The Seagulls finally got that feeling back on Friday night with a last-gasp 2-1 win away to Galway. A first half goal from Joe Doyle and an injury time Gary Shaw header sandwiched a Galway equaliser and afterwards, the gaffer couldn't hide how good it felt when he spoke to James Fenton.

"It's fantastic, we'd sort of lost that winning feeling," he said. "We were where we were and coming into the game tonight with no wins, it's hard as the weeks go on. To get our first win in Galway is a great result. The lads have been excellent in loads of games and unfortunately, we haven't got our stroke of luck. We came back up from Cobh after a game we should have won and it's a frustrating feeling on a bus journey so now it will be a little bit better."

Shaw's game time has been limited since picking up an injury against Shelbourne on Good Friday and as the striker explained himself, Cronin felt Friday was the time to give him an extended run on the pitch.

Joe Doyle opens the scoring against Galway

"Gary's a player who we don't want to have on the bench, we want him on the pitch all the time," Cronin said of his namesake. "He's getting back to full fitness, he's nearly there but playing 90 minutes just isn't in his legs at the moment. That might change soon. To have someone like Gary come on in those scenarios with his experience and to score the winner is great."

Gary directing from the sidelines in Galway

Friday's game was a tetchy affair at times, with six players (two for Galway and four for Bray) as well as a Galway member of staff going into referee Mark Moynihan's book. While empty stadia mean that officials are safe from fan opinions, players and delegates from both clubs made their feelings known over the course of the game, leading to sympathy from the Seagulls manager.

"It's a difficult job, refereeing," Gary said. "The way the game has gone now, there's shouts from everybody and it's so difficult to manage for referees, I really don't envy them. A lot of the time tackles are happening, and you just want players to get up and get on with it and I mean that for both sets of players. I thought he got a couple of decisions wrong but that happens with every referee. I don't understand why Dylan Barnett had a free against him in the penalty area but it's difficult when all you hear is shouts. Overall, I don't think Mark had a bad performance."

The main thing was getting the three points and Cronin described the feeling in the dressing room afterwards by saying "it's great to get that monkey off the back. There's been four games that we've played that we should have won but we didn't, so obviously that's on the players' minds. We've been focused and concentrated throughout the whole lot and just made sure we didn't get away from what we're trying to do. Tonight's game could easily have ended up a draw and that wouldn't have been a bad result on its own, but I think we deserved that stroke of luck."

QUIGLEY'S WORLD OF FOOTBALL

"Outfield In"

By Brian Quigley

During the 2019-20 season in England a new rule was brought in for grassroots football. It involved the use of the 'sin bin', where a player could be put off the field for 10 minutes if a referee issued the player with a yellow card while simultaneously pointing to the sideline.

When reading the detail of the rule the bit about goalkeepers being sin-binned stood out for me. If the goalie was sin-binned then an outfield player could go in goals for the 10 minutes; when the time had elapsed the goalie could come back on but not straight back into goal – that had to wait for a break in play to happen.

I suppose what all this reminded me of was goalkeepers playing outfield and outfield players playing in goals. Some goalkeepers started out as outfield players – Joe Hart and Pepe Reina to name two – and others developed a fondness for venturing up the park [the sight of Peter Schmeichel marauding in the opposition box if Manchester United needed a goal during 'Fergie Time' will be easy to recall for soccer fans who were around in the 1990's].

If the 'sin bin' rule gets extended to professional soccer then we will be seeing a lot more of outfield players going in goal, and goalkeepers having to play outfield while they wait for a break in play. Historically the former situation at least was common – in the days before any substitutions were allowed, or when there was only one allowed [it was always an outfield player], an injury to a goalkeeper resulted in an outfield player going in goals, sometimes with the injured goalkeeper continuing outfield if his injuries prevented him from diving but not from running!

I remember seeing Niall Quinn having to go in goals for Manchester City in April 1991 in a game at Maine Road against Derby County. Tony Coton, the City keeper, had been red-carded. Quinn, who had scored a goal before going in goals, promptly saved a penalty to help his team to a 2-1 win! I also remember John O'Shea having to go between the posts for Manchester United in 2007 to deputize for the injured Edwin van der Sar; United were playing Tottenham Hotspur and won 4-0, with O'Shea claiming a clean sheet!

There were other outfield players who were useful between the nets. Glenn Hoddle went in goals not once, not twice but three times for Tottenham Hotspur. Pele went in goal once for Santos, during a 1964 game. David Webb stood in for the injured Peter Bonetti for Chelsea in 1971 and did so well that the manager actually started him in goal for the next game while Bonetti continued his recovery, despite the club having a reserve goalie!

Whatever about outfield players fancying themselves as shot-stoppers, what about goalkeepers fancying themselves out on the park? Fabian Barthez once played outfield for Manchester United, in a 2001 pre-season friendly in Singapore. Then there was Stuart Pearce moving David James out of goal and up front in the closing stages of a game against Middlesbrough in 2004-05. City were chasing the game, so Pearce substituted outfield player Claudio Reyne with reserve keeper Nicky Weaver. Weaver went in goal and James went up front [the ploy didn't work!].

Gary Shaw interview

While the rest of us wondered if a first win of the season was coming on Friday night, it seems that Gary Shaw knew all along. The striker came on in the second half to seal a 2-1 victory over Galway United with an injury time header and as he explained after the game, it's not the first time he's nicked the points for his side at Eamonn Deacy Park.

"I like it up in Galway, I've scored a few up here," Shaw said. "I scored a last-minute winner here in 2017 with Shamrock Rovers. It's always in the back of my mind, I always feel like I have a bit of luck when I'm here so when I was put on, I just wanted to get one chance and that chance came in the last minute."

The Seagulls' maiden victory of the 2021 campaign arrived later than we would have hoped, and nobody could argue that we didn't deserve it after some good performances. Shaw, who celebrates his 29th birthday on Monday, goes along with that, saying: "We needed that win badly. We've been playing well and just not getting a bit of luck. We got a bit of luck tonight, they hit the post twice and had a few decent chances, but you just need to take your chance when it comes and I'm glad I did that."

It's been tough for Shaw, watching on from the sidelines and he credits his manager for allowing him the time and space to regain fitness. "I got an injury against Shels and I'm trying to get back as quickly as I can, I'm probably rushing it a small bit," he said.

"Gary (Cronin) has been really good, he's been patient with me and understands that I have to be careful. He's been getting me on bit by bit. Tonight, I told him, and he felt, that I had enough in me for half an hour or 40 minutes. It was good for my head and confidence to get that under my belt and to score as well is just a bonus."

A injury time winner will always lead to jubilant scenes in the dressing room and Friday night was no different. The long wait made the win all the sweeter and now, with five draws and just one defeat, Gary feels that the next job is to kick on.

"We came in after the game as if we won a cup final but it's just that weight off our shoulders. We've felt that we've been playing well, and we've been unlucky, like in the Shels game when we were done with the peno, but we just weren't taking our chances. We were getting balls into the box but just had no one there to finish it. Luckily when the ball came into the box tonight, I was there to put it away. It's a big relief but we need to keep this going now."

How many subs is enough?

Mícheál Ó hUanacháin looks at an increasingly crowded subs' bench

When Dylan Barnett's attempted clearance rebounded forcefully to his own face off Ian Turner in St Colman's Park last month, seven minutes before the end of the 90, it looked as if Bray were going to have to make their first ever Concussion Substitution. The right back certainly looked dazed and groggy as he limped to the sideline, and he was indeed withdrawn from play – but there was no clear indication that that particular new rule had been invoked.

Bray haven't been lining the bench with their full potential of nine subs (including two extra for the concussion rule) so far this season. Indeed, Gary Cronin hasn't even been using his quota of three ordinary substitutions on a regular basis: in five of the seven matches played to date, only one substitution was made – and three of those were forced, in that the player substituted had been injured.

When Bray entered the First Division for its inaugural season in 1985, team managers had only the possibility of introducing one substitute player in the course of a game. In exceptional cases, where a goalkeeper was unable to continue, a second substitute was also allowed.

The rules were relaxed a couple of years later, and any two players might be substituted, with the manager required to name just three non-starting players from whom those substitutes might be drawn.

In terms of changes to the Laws of the Game, those numbers were changed again in 1994 and 1995, first to two outfield players and a goalkeeper if incapacitated and then to any three players, with the number of named non-starting substitutes rising to five and eventually to seven.

These changes were all made by the International Football Association Board (IFAB). It's the custodian of the Laws of the Game, and has been since its foundation in 1886. It is a curious body, partially a relic of that time when the only ruling bodies in soccer were those of the four British "Home Nations". The FAI, later known for political reasons as the FA of the Irish Free State, spent countless hours and massive amounts of energy in trying to gain the "Irish" seat on IFAB from the Belfast IFA after the two separated, but to no avail.

When FIFA was formed in 1904, it agreed to enforce the Laws as laid down by IFAB. It also lobbied successfully for a seat on the Board and attended IFAB for the time at its meeting in Portrush in 1913. At that time, the voting requirement for amendments to the Rules, which had up to then needed unanimity, was relaxed to 80% of the votes. That still meant that the Home Nations could always outvote FIFA, a situation that was to be maintained for almost half a century.

The voting requirement was relaxed again in 1957, this time to 75% – which now meant that while FIFA on its own couldn't force a change in the Laws, given its representation on the Board had been increased only to four seats out of eight, neither could the British Associations without some other support.

The substitution numbers have been changed by the Board again, no fewer than three times in the past five years: from 2016, a fourth substitution could be made in Extra Time. And three years later following studies and requests from both FIFA and UEFA, IFAB began its own analysis of the problem of concussion injuries, which were also concerning the rugby and Gaelic authorities as evidence of the seriousness of these accidents had mounted.

As a result, in December last, IFAB announced a trial of additional 'concussion subs' which would start in 2021. The trial period would last from January 2021 to March 2022, allowing for at least a full season's experience in both winter and summer-based Associations.

In addition to the FA, the Dutch Leagues, Portugal and Japan were noted as adopting the innovation in a Guardian article last March (which didn't mention the Republic), and in the USA Major League Soccer was joining the trials when its season opened last month.

And in the meantime, just to complicate matters, a temporary amendment of the Laws made by IFAB in the context of the current pandemic has allowed for up to five substitutions, together with the additional sub already allowed in Extra Time. But those additional subs are to be specified in competition rule – so the situation in the FAI Cup could conceivably be different from that in the League, for example.

And the number of subs allowed to be named is also a matter for the individual competition rules, with Law 2 saying only that any competition's rules "must state how many substitutes may be named, from three to a maximum of twelve."

So now we have three different types of substitute in the game:

- Normal Subs: Three, with a fourth available in Extra Time if competition rules allow
- Covid Subs (temporary): Two additional subs, but substitutions only to be made on three occasions (apart from half time)
- Concussion Subs (trial): One or two further additional subs, depending on which of two protocols is being used

So, if we only have seven subs named, it's conceivable that the idea of "emptying the bench" could one day turn out to be a literal fact. And we can have anything up to nine subs named, unless the competition rules say we can have more.

Wanderer Vienna Lager

Bray Wanderers have teamed up with Wicklow Wolf to launch its own lager, 'Wanderers' which is available today. The collaboration between the two Wicklow entities will see a limited supply of the new lager available in selected off licenses in Bray including O'Briens, The Bottle Shop and Supervalu.

Niall O'Driscoll, Chairman of Bray Wanderers Football Club said: "We are delighted to team up with another local Wicklow business and launch our limited-edition lager. We are big fans of Wicklow Wolf and I'm sure our fans will love this new lager".

Simon Lynch, Bray native and Co-Founder of Wicklow Wolf said: "We are delighted to be supporting local and to partner with Bray Wanderers FC. Back in 2014, we opened our brewery just around the corner from the Carlisle Grounds, after myself and my co-founder, Quincey Fennelly decided to take a lease on an old bakery just off the Quinsborough Rd. Supporting local is more important now than ever and we will be releasing this collaboration beer with all profits going to Bray Wanderers FC. "Wanderer" is our take on the classic Vienna Lager. At 5.1% you can expect an easy drinking golden amber lager packed with flavour."
